

Richard Quigley – Powder Point Bed and Breakfast^v

Give a brief description of your business.

This cozy and charming Bed & Breakfast is located in historic, seaside Duxbury. The house is a circa 1820 ship's carpenter Greek Revival cottage on Powder Point with easy access to beaches, hiking, sailing, fishing, golf and more.

Accommodations include three bedrooms (two with fireplaces), with private bath available. There are also fireplaces in the living room and dining room, plus a patio overlooking the gardens. We have central air conditioning, central air and water filtration and guest room televisions.

We also own and operate a tearoom in Plymouth, "All Things Tea." we offer Tregothnan Estate teas, a historically unique as the only tea actually grown and blended in England.

How long have you been in business?

We have offered the bed and breakfast for eight years.

How did you get started?

We were empty nesters providing a B&B to friends and decided to expand the offering to the Duxbury and greater community.

What should people know about you and your business?

We have found this experience a terrific social link with the residents by offering our guests rooms to extended family and guests visiting Duxbury.

What is the best business advice you ever received?

Richard Quigley's establishment serves Tregothnan Estate tea, the only tea actually grown in England.

Best business advice was to offer an exceptionally clean and comfortable environment at a competitive price and keep as many expenses as variable as possible.

Tell us a memorable story about your business.

One morning at breakfast we had two gentlemen in town for different local events. During their convivial discussions they learned they lived within 5 miles of each other in North Carolina.

What's the best thing about your job?

We have met people with diverse and fascinating careers with travel experiences from around the world.

So, how's business these days, anyway?

We continue to provide inviting accommodations for Duxbury, neighboring communities and European visitors. Our level of activity has been very steady.
